

CASE 22/7

Two previous agents have been assigned to this case, in an attempt to piece together the mysterious evidence found here. The first agent threw too many temper tantrums and generally proved to be an irrational person on the whole. The second agent, Agent Johnson, now retired, managed to piece together some information about the case. He left behind a grid and a collection of polygonal drawings, both of which are included. No further progress on this case has been made.
